Is it permissible to copy material available on Westlaw and post it on my TWEN page?

In some instances, the TWEN courseware software will automatically create a link to content available in Westlaw from a listed citation, in which case there is no copyright concern. Also, when uploading a document to TWEN, there is an option to link citations to Westlaw. If a live link is not created, however, the best course of action is to provide students with the citation in Westlaw for them to locate themselves. The Westlaw and TWEN User’s Agreement, contains more specific information on content use in TWEN.